Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1857 Excerpt: . . . containing from six to eight rooms, and seven acres of ground. Of the mode of cultivation and general management the following extract, marked No. 2. , will give some idea. The present head-master, Mr. Jones, came in January 1854. He was trained at Cheltenham, and took a second-class certificate. There are also three resident male teachers, besides the pupil-teachers; one being an assistant provided by the Government Minute of July 1852, and one only a French teacher. The infants schoolmistress, Miss Ince, trained at the Borough Road, superintends the upper school girls when out of the school-room, and undertakes the infant school with the assistance of a pupil-teacher and monitor. During the summer months the average attendance is in the infant school from 40 to 50, and in the upper school from 90 to 100; from 60 to 70 of these being day scholars. The lowest rate of payment for day scholars is 1 d. weekly, a few only paying at a higher rate. Weekly boarders pay 3. 6d. per week, entire boarders 16. per annum if boys, 14. if girls. This, with two guineas on entrance, includes every expense but clothing and medical attendance. No child under seven is received as boarder. See Extracts No. 3. and No. 4. The day scholars are principally children of labourers, some few of farmers or tradesmen; the boarders are, for the most part, children of tradesmen in London and its neighbourhood, but some are the children of servants,...
